Minutes of Meeting - 07/04/2020

Text Features Discussion
Updates on the work everyone has done during the week and the work they intend to do in the next few days
- Kul and Tejas- work further on the analytics and other technical aspects. + syntactic Complexity correlation analysis(Tejas), according to the inputs provided by kul.
- Kul and sharon - Kul pointed out that a few aspects of the models they both worked on are quiet different and it would be wise to preserve both models, hence the writing will reflect the questions and models that all the team members worked on separately.
- Donal, Aparna , Kul and Sharon - form the separate research questions, methodology and Results discussion
- Tejas - Combine all of the above data and fuse them so that the narrative of the Final Paper does not sound disjointed.
- Review of the format of the paper- we have followed the Computational Linguistics Paper format and the Professor recommends Computational Semantics, Tejas confirmed both are very similar and no latex available for Semantics, hence this will be reviewed after we finish writing the Final Paper.
- The paper length needs to be within 8Pages, according to the professors guidelines and the document Donal shared with the group the outlines the requirements for a student paper. We have already reached 6 Pages and so we all should limit the next writings considering all of the members will still have to include the model specifications used. Also it was discussed that we can shorten the Literature Review while reviewing the first draft of the Final Paper.
- Also it was discussed that we should write about the methods that did work out and that didn't since the Professor talked about how he wants to know about the process even if the results didn't prove our hypothesis.
- Since there is no more time to run the the syntactic complexity tool for Negative and Average Reviews again, we discussed it with the team , and it was decided that we would mention that due to time constraints, we are only showing the results for positive Reviews and are putting the rest in future works.

Deadlines for the rest of the work
- Submit the individual Research question and the images each member wants to be included in the Paper - 8th April, 2020
- Further discussion of the written aspects of the project(If necessary) - Impromptu Meeting (timings to be discussed on the group.)
- Final individual writing submission- 9th April,2020.
